Course Title: Screening, Brief Intervention, and Referral to Treatment (SBIRT) for Oral Health Professionals

Course Description: Screening, brief intervention, and referral to treatment (SBIRT) is an evidence-based practice designed to identify problematic drug and alcohol use early, reduce unhealthy use, encourage healthy behaviors, and refer individuals to treatment with other specialized providers if they need it. It involves a process of steps that a healthcare professional including dental clinicians, both dentists and dental hygienists, can take to assess alcohol and drug use behaviors in their patients to reduce oral cancer risk as well as other risks to their health. This approach is feasible in dentistry settings and aligns well with a personalized approach

- Reassure patients in addiction recovery that they will manage their dental-related pain
- Check their state's prescription drug monitoring program (PDMP) and screen for opioid misuse risk
- Use non-opioid medications as a first line of defense

Learning Objectives:

By the end of this session, participants will be able to:

Describe the rationale for and evidence base supporting SBIRT in dental settings

Deliver and interpret a screening tool that could be used to identify risky alcohol and drug use

Demonstrate 1-2 brief intervention strategies consistent with a motivational interviewing approach
